Claims 82, 99, 104, 105 and 113 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. There is no support in the specification, as originally filed, for the term "interferon" (claims 82, 99 and 113). Note the in the specification on page 14, lines 27-28 only four specific interferons are disclosed. The specification fails to disclose that any interferon can be used.

Claims 28-41 and 82-97 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for chlorine ion, does not reasonably provide enablement for counterion (claim 28). The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

A conclusion of lack of enablement means that, based on the evidence regarding each of the factors below, the specification, at the time the application was filed, would not have taught one skilled in the art how to make and/or use the full scope of the claimed invention without undue experimentation.

(A) The breadth of the claims.

The claims encompass all possible counterions.

(B) The amount of direction provided by the inventor.

The inventor has not provided any direction on how to choose a counterion which will result in a compound having useful in enhancing delivery of therapeutic agents.

(C) The existence of working examples.

The working examples are directed to a single counterion i.e. chlorine ion.

(D) The quantity of experimentation needed to make or use the invention based on the content of the disclosure.

Because there is no way to predict a priori which others counterions, besides, chlorine, will result in useful compounds, it would take an undue amount of trial and error to determine specific counterions which result in compounds having the desired property.

Applicant's arguments filed July 26, 2007 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claims 100-103 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Elli Peselev whose telephone number is (571) 272-0659. The examiner can normally be reached on 8.00-4.30.
